zigzag architectural design is most certainly captured from this stunning aspect. Zigzag window openings resting alongside a deck, vanish to infinity in the landscape...The structure is a twisted off-center hardwood frame which allows window or door openings at every corner, bound together with a plywood beam at parapet height that provides stability to the framework. The cabin seeks to camouflage itself through the chameleon-like, or more appropriately goanna like, colour applied through a layered painting process.

The nine square meter structure is ideal for two people however the cabin was designed to have three sleeping areas. Two at ground level and a bunk on a suspended mezzanine. A composting toilet system is located in a separate shed like structure adjoining a gas heated outdoor shower. There is an additional 1,000 litre water storage tank servicing the facilities. Powered by a solar system of two solar panels which runs 12-volt lights and provides 110-amp power to the site. A dam is located within sight of the cabin, providing a natural water source, a meeting place for local wildlife gatherings. For modern conveniences the property has the benefit of having mobile phone reception, a rarity in this location.

Boasting 360-degree views of magnificent bushland in all directions, your privacy is assured with the property backing onto state forest. The property is located approximately two and a half hours drive north of Sydney in the beautiful Wollombi Valley, this 42-hectare (approx. 103 acre) bushland property provides the perfect country getaway! Explore nearby historic Wollombi township, boutique wineries the rustic Laguna Village and the vast countryside of the Yango national park and state forests!
